Notes for Jarvis Whitehead Chapman:
[Barr2070223-1.ged]

Painter and decorator by trade.

Served in France in WW1. Joined up in 1915? With Royal Army Ordnance Corps. First stationed at Woolwich. Moved to Dover Castle barracks. (Cushy job). Worked on the chemical side of things. (Gas?) Sent to France as a result of high jinx with a mate. He threw an oily rag at the mate who ducked. The rag hit an officer....

Spent most of the war in the St Quentin, Albert, Bapaume, Peronne, Arras sector. At one time he was attached to an aerodrome - defensive guns, ammo dump, bombs and bomb disposal.

Spent several weeks as an acting, unpaid lance corporal.

Got trench fever in 1917 and was sent back to England in a hospital ship.

Discharged as medically unfit with tuberculosis in 1918 and given six months to live. Doctors said 2 years to live if in suitable place. So he lived at Withernsea for a while. After one year he returned to Hull and work.

Lost his army disability pension.

Painted pubs and Hull Brewery. Also pub signs.

Served in WW2 civil defence and first aid. Moved on to rescue work - he helped dig out the nurses' home in Newland Park, Hull. He found the work nasty and too heavy for his heart (medically) so gave it up.

Subsequently was a fire watcher. His house at 1 The Woodlands was damaged in a raid in 1941. Cracks patched up by Anthony Stuart Barr in the 1980's.

Died at home in his sleep of heart failure.

Driffield Times Sep 11, 1875

A young girl name Eugene BARR summoned George GRINDALL for an assault. They are fellow servants in the employ of Mr DUNN, at Harpham; the defendant being the foreman. On the 11th August, without cause, the defendant seized the girl, while she was cutting up some bread and butter and carried her into the yard and deliberately dropped her into a tub of water, which took her up to the waist. George WALKER corroborated this; he was stood near the tub when GRINDALL brought her and put her in. Defendant, a ruffian, had not a word to say. Fined 10s and 13s expenses.
